Let us leave
conformity and routine,
safety and refuge,
premature surrender
to established ways.
Let us encounter
God, the world,
others, ourselves.
Let us follow new paths,
as pilgrims
and friends
in the Lord,
around the table,
in the sharing of bread.

Let us go out,
seeking answers
–or new questions–
inquiring into history, by the spirit that encourages through paths and difficulties, searching
for the first principle,
the ultimate foundation,
for a possible
but wounded creation.

Let us leave
self-love,
self-interest
and our own attachments
to find
an ardent Love,
a fruitful love,
the needs of others.

It's time.
